Labor Board Refuses Lodging Pay Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Decision of the British Columbia War Labor Board to refuse permission to the Northern Construction Co. and J. W. Stewart Ltd. of Vancouver to pay dredging workers at Powell River, B.C., 225 a day for board and lodging was upheld in a National War Labor Board decision announced today.

The B.C. board had authorized the payment of actual cost of board and lodging in excess of $135 a day. The National Board said it did not see grounds for interfering with this ruling.

Roosevelt Opens Campaign Talks On Air Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt—"The Champ"—to his political assistants—had his final workout at the White House today before his verbal bout tonight with the opposition in his historic bid for a fourth term.

Four of his speech consultants were on hand late Friday night and early today giving a wealth of material a going-over with blue pencil before the President himself compressed it to the 3,000 words he allows himself for a half-hour's radio talk.

He will speak at a dinner of the International Teamsters' Union (A.F.L.) from 6:30 to 7 p.m. P.D.T.

The topic has not been announced, but it was widely obvious the speech would include a fresh appeal to the labor vote and perhaps a few shots at charges made by Governor Thomas E. Dewey against his administration.

ANSWERS MISSTATEMENTS

In accepting a fourth-term nomination in July, the President said he would not campaign in the usual political sense, but reserve the right to reply to any "misrepresentations" uttered by the opposition.

Except for a few recent news conference remarks, Mr. Roosevelt has kept his 1944 campaign under wraps.

He told a questioner at his semi-weekly interview Friday he did not think his administration has become saturated with defeatist theories as charged often by the Republican presidential candidate on his western tour.

Several weeks ago, replying to another Dewey accusation that the President and his aides were a tired, quarrelsome and defeatist group, the chief executive recalled that he had said before that he wished to retire to his Hyde Park home, but not because he was tired or defeated.

MacNamara Pleased At Labor Situation In Western Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, back at his desk after a tour of western Canada, today expressed general satisfaction with handling of the farm labor problem, movement of what at the Lakehead and employment of Japanese in interior British Columbia.

Mr. MacNamara spent some time making an on-the-spot inquiry into the handling of Japanese moved into the interior of British Columbia and said preliminary steps have been taken to segregate the Japanese who will return to Japan after the war from those who will remain in Canada.

During his trip Mr. MacNamara visited all the larger employment offices in the west and conferred with provincial authorities on farm labor difficulties. As a result of Dominion-provincial co-operation in the selective service program threat of a failure to remove all the crop had been eliminated.

A total of 25,000 harvesters had been provided, many of them from the east. At Aug. 31 there were 13,000 soldiers on farm leave and valuable assistance has also been given by members of the R.C.A.F.

'Long John' Clayton Sees Much Action
OTTAWA (CP)—There's little about modern sea warfare that Lieut. John Every-Clayton of Burnaby, B.C., genial, pipe-smoking navigating officer of the H.M.C.S. Prince Robert, hasn't experienced.

He had his first taste of war while serving as a merchant seaman cadet out of New Zealand in 1914 and in this war he has been under enemy attack both as a merchant seaman and a corvette captain.

"Long John" Clayton, as his friends know him on the Pacific coast, was captain of the tanker Canadette, which was in Le Havre three weeks before France capitulated in 1940. On its next trip, the Canadette was captured by the Germans, but Clayton was on his way to join the navy.

He took over command of the Canadian corvette Sheildac in June, 1941, and for the next two years he was in the thick of the Battle of the Atlantic.

In 1943, Lieut. Clayton left corvettes and joined the Prince Robert as navigating officer. Five months later he was in the thick of action again when German bombers attacked a convoy the Prince Robert was protecting.

Faces Drug Charges

VANCOUVER (CP)—George McSorensen, 31, was committed for trial by Magistrate H. S. Wood Friday on four charges of possession of morphine.

Merriman Round-up...

NEWS-EAGERLY AWAITED by thousands of servicemen and their families, some of whom have been separated for five years, is more detail on Canada's policy of who bears the fighting burden in the Pacific after the fighting in Europe? Popular decision would be to permit those who have been a long time away to return to do a spell of Canadian duty and give deferred men and Home Defenders a chance of either postwar policing duties or active service in the Pacific. Others think, however, it would be unfair at this stage of the game to endanger the unblemished record of inactivity of the World War II waitflowers who prefer to "sit it out."

HOSPITALITY OF THE LIBERATED French people wins the admiration of war correspondent William Stewart. Military personnel have been swept off their feet by the charm of the people of Paris, some of whom seem to be keeping their homes open 24 hours a day to soldiers, he says. You have only to stand on the street a quarter of an hour to get half a dozen invitations to dinner. He got invitations from two Belgians who served with Canadian battalions in World War I, a Parisian with relatives in Montreal, a Canadian officer who led a group of Maquis and a Parisian lady and daughter who harbored an R.A.F. officer for three months.

Viscount Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister, declared at a Thanksgiving service in England that he believed God had given a special trust to the British Empire to uphold the Christian faith and had spared it for this purpose. Dunkerque and the Battle of Britain were miracles, he said. "But this war will have been in vain," he added, "unless we can stimulate a spiritual attitude of mind. The war was caused by our neglecting Christianity for materialism."

PROMOTION SHOULDN'T BE FAR AWAY for the C.W.A.C. recruit from Mexico, now serving here. When the recruiting officer attested her found it necessary to call an official at the immigration board, she dialed the number, contacted the party and handed the phone to the officer saying: "Here is the party you wanted, sir" ... while he was still looking for the phone book!

What Price Our B.C. History

By JAMES K. NESBITT

AN historical society in any community should be a living, vibrant organization. It should make an effort to appeal to the youth, to the school children and, above all, to their teachers, for a love of history must be inculcated when people are young. It should honor the pioneers and listen to their stories, for they are the living links between present and past.

Victoria's historical society has done good work as far as it goes, but has it gone far enough? There has been too strong a tendency in this organization, many people believe, not to change, to cater year in and year out to the same people, to representatives of the "first families," to sink back into a quiet respectability and talk only among themselves of old times.

True, Mr. Justice H. B. Robertson, president of the Victoria section, B.C. Historical Society, has appealed time and time again for new members, but there the appeal has stopped. There has been no effort, as far as this observer can see, to really go out and put on a drive for new members.

The other evening Professor Sydney Pettit of Victoria College gave a very excellent story of the life and times of Matthew Baillie Begbie. He must have done a tremendous amount of research, for his lecture was filled with little known facts about this great jurist; Mr. Pettit made his story historically valuable, and spiced it with amusing anecdotes and a description of the picturesque character and eccentricity of this man who helped build British Columbia.

What a pity it was that less than 50 persons heard this splendid talk. What a shame that the teachers of Greater Victoria were not there, so that they could hear about Begbie—and stories like him—and relay the stories to the young people in their care.

At that meeting a young reporter—under 21 year—sat next to me. Before the lecture started he did a great deal of moaning and groaning about being assigned to such a deadly, dull affair. He intimated he would rather be jiving somewhere. Before Mr. Pettit was 10 minutes into his lecture, I found the young man listening with absorbing interest. I heard him chuckle at the lighter anecdotes. I saw him, out of the corner of my eye, hanging on every word, and, when it was all over he turned to me and said "say, that was sure interesting—there must be something in this historic stuff."

I think his attitude was typical. I think that if the youth of the community could be interested in history—they would start a research into it that would add enormous value and wealth to the annals of British Columbia.

IN the United States, of recent years, historical societies have sprung up in many of the states and their memberships are amazingly large—and many of the states have not nearly as fascinating a history as British Columbia. These societies have appealed to everyone, have made their meetings so interesting that even the young people attend; they have become modern and streamlined and abandoned the "first family" attitude that perhaps stifles our historical society.

British Columbia has a magnificent archives and it should be more publicized. It is a hard fact to believe—but hundred of Vic-

British Advancing To Jap Base Tiddim

KANDY, Ceylon (CP)—Troops of the British 14th Army have occupied Tongzang and driven eight miles farther toward Tiddim, Allied headquarters announced today. Tiddim, main base for the Japanese push into India last spring, is about 20 miles south of Tongzang and the immediate objective of the Allied Chin Hill offensive.

FIRST INTEREST

The first interest is particularly the key, government circles here say, to Canadian willingness to have the scope of UNRRA extended to include the feeding of enemy countries. So far as the Dominion's delegation is concerned this whole and highly controversial question is a practical rather than a philosophical issue. The view is accepted that, in the final analysis, neither Germans, Japanese, nor Italians are going to be allowed to starve after the peace, and that if UNRRA does not do the feeding, then Great Britain and the United States will have to undertake it.

But the main source of foodstuffs from which Great Britain would draw, the Canadian authorities realize, would be Canada, and they would be furnished under mutual aid, which would mean the Dominion would not receive any cash for them.

Under the circumstances, Canada is all for having UNRRA do the job—even if it means her being one of 44 contributors. It is better that way, the Canadian authorities figure, than having the major part of the food contribution come from Canada via the United Kingdom, with no cash for the Dominion at all involved in the transaction.

LOBBY FOR MARKETS

The importance of UNRRA as a possible organization for gaining participating countries a foothold in postwar export markets has been highlighted at the Montreal sittings by the Canadian delegation. It is well known in the capital here that over the past several months numerous lobbies from industrial interests have been pressuring the Departments of Trade and Commerce and External Affairs to get their products on the UNRRA list. The motive in the minds of these manufacturers is that the peoples of continental Europe and Asia are likely to continue to purchase the first goods with which they become acquainted on their liberation.

In the eyes of these industrialists, in other words, UNRRA is an agency through which they can get their samples in the hands of prospective customers and get paid for them into the bargain. It is as a result of these representations from the Dominion's industrialists that the Canadian delegation is devoting its interest so largely in the supply field to agricultural implements, textiles, clothing, leather goods and other manufactured products, rather than to emphasizing cereals and other food stuffs of which Canada has a substantial surplus.

West's Prospects Bright Says Weston on Coast

VANCOUVER (CP)—Western Canada has the best prospect of any part of the world, W. Garfield Weston, owner of Weston's Bread and Biscuit Co. and controller of several other eastern companies, said here.

Mr. Weston, who plans on making his home in Vancouver, arrived Friday from Calgary.

He predicted his western interests would be eventually at least as large as those in eastern Canada, where he controls the E. B. Eddy Co., the J. R. Booth lumber interests and Western Grocers, as well as Weston's.

Brig. Bob Wyman Comes to Canada To Recuperate

By ROSS MUNRO
LONDON (CP)—Brig. Robert Wyman (Bob) Wyman of Edmonton, who commanded Canadian tank formations in Sicily, Italy and France, is returning to Canada. He was badly wounded in the right arm during the battle for Falaise in Normandy last month and while recovering well, he still has not full use of his arm.

The husky, doughty brigadier, who has seen more action than any other Canadian armored commander, led the 1st Armored Brigade, in the Mediterranean from the Sicily landing in July, 1943, to the battle of Ortona on Italy's Adriatic coast last December, and also commanded the 2nd Armored Brigade through all its actions around Caen, Normandy port, and during the fierce battle for Falaise, 20 miles south.

CAEN ACTION
As commander of the 2nd Armored Brigade, Brig. Wyman was one of Lt. Gen. Simonds' advisers when a novel night attack was devised for the 1st Canadian Army's initial attack Aug. 8 south of Caen, which culminated in the capture of Falaise Aug. 11. Gen. Simonds was in command of the Canadian corps engaged. Tanks were employed in strength in this night attack for the first time in France and the plan worked superbly.

The brigadier was wounded the morning of the attack. He was treated at a Canadian hospital in France and later in another Canadian hospital in England.

Fleet of Trucks Rolls Across France Supplying Allies

By MARSHAL YARROW
PARIS (CP—Reuters)—A mighty fleet of huge trucks, shuttling backwards and forwards across France day and night is the only thing that keeps the Allied armies from running out of supplies in their swift advance.

Four times as long as the famed Burma Road, the two-way road network is a veritable Allied "highway to victory."

Approximately 25,000 soldiers directed by Lt. Gen. John C. H. Lee, commanding the general communications zone, ride this highway network day and night, speeding gasoline, ammunition and food to the troops in the front lines.

The trucks use 30,000 gallons of gasoline daily and at present the freight carried amounts to 30,000,000 ton-miles, or the equivalent of carrying one ton of freight around the world 700 times. Some of the return trips are 1,000 miles, although the average run is about 700 miles.

STARTED AUG. 25
All day columns of trucks roll along the two major highways, one eastbound, the other westbound. In the first 26 days' operation, the system delivered more than 200,000 tons of supplies to the western front. It was started Aug. 24 after the breakthrough at Saint Lo had made the supply problem acute.

Gen. Patton motorized his infantry on its own supply division overnight by mounting trucks. This forced communications zone commanders to "throw the rule book out the window" and improvise. Strain became tremendous and racing convoys bucked against each other.

Drivers fell asleep at the wheel and crashed. Convoys were diverted, split up, lost and even kidnapped by a unit needing supplies and vehicles. The opening of the new highway hook-up brought order from chaos.

It is built around a pattern of circuitous one-way roads. A truck-train heading to battle dumps travels along one side with food, gasoline and ammunition. It returns on other side, usually loaded with captured enemy goods. The average driving speed is 25 miles an hour and the pace is usually maintained 20 hours daily, although some drivers have worked 36 hours without relief.

Nazis at Movies Wouldn't Surrender

By DESMOND TIGHE
WITH THE BRITISH 2nd ARMY (CP-Reuters)—The place and name of the Channel port is not mentioned, the story may be true or untrue, but it is vouched for by a senior staff officer.

Canadian troops were pressing against a Channel port. The German garrison was cut off, its position hopeless, but it continued to fight grimly.

The Canadians sent in an officer with a white flag to demand the German surrender. Having passed safely through the perimeter defenses, the officer found the town strangely deserted.

He asked a German soldier to take him to the commandant. But the commandant and all the senior officers were at the movies.

"Go away," the German commandant told the British officer. "We don't want to surrender. Anyhow, the big picture is just beginning."

The envoy returned and the Canadians took the town by storm.

Padlock Regulations May Be Revised
VANCOUVER (CP)—A special meeting of the Vancouver Police Commission will be required to deal with the question of seeking revision of the padlock provisions of the Liquor Act, as the next general session would not be held until October, Judge A. M. Harper, commission member, announced.

Attorney-General R. L. Maitland has said he would give the matter his "most careful attention" should representations be made to him.

Present provisions of the act have caused delay in dealing with the rented premises where the shooting of 22-year-old Kevin Thompson occurred earlier this week.

Under present regulations notice must be served on the property owner before a rented building can be legally padlocked and police must prove the owner was aware of the tenant's illegal actions and was negligent in not removing him from the premises.

They Put Troops Ashore in France

LIEUT. JOHN SHAW

LIEUT. BRUCE MCGREGOR

LIEUT. GODFREY WENMAN

LIEUT. WM. BALLANTYNE

These four Victorians who played an active part in the Normandy invasion landings on D-Day are expected home on Monday to spend well-earned leave. They are all members of the Wavy Navy and have seen considerable service overseas since the beginning of the war.

Lieut. Shaw, former member of the Times reportorial staff, had his landing barge holed three times on the Channel run and beached her on the French coast just before it would have been necessary to abandon ship. But he got his men ashore. The only casualty was an officer who was wounded in the neck. After his barge had been patched up on the beach for the return trip, Shaw turned it into a hospital craft and took back 90 wounded men and a number of Nazi prisoners.

Lieut. McGregor was in command of an invasion craft on D-Day. While his men waded through the water in landing they had to hold onto guard lines to prevent being swept off their feet by the undertow. Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McGregor, 2126 Granite St. He is one of the early class graduates from H.M.C.S. Royal Roads.

Lieut. Wenman is a prominent Victoria athlete who took part in combined landing operations in France. He played rugby with the Victoria Red team and the Canadian Scottish and made a name for himself as a cricketer with the Incoogs. His home is at Gordon Head.

Lieut. Ballantyne, who also served with landing craft in the Normandy invasion operations, hails from Courtenay.

Germany's End In November Most Canadians Believe

By Canadian Institute of Public Opinion
TORONTO—When Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery said, recently, that there was "no doubt" of a complete German defeat this year, he was echoing the sentiments of seven in 10 Canadian voters—none of whom are field marshals.

As for the Japanese war, the Canadian general public is less optimistic and is inclined to think that it will take at least another 12 months. A third of the voters think it will take longer than 16 months to knock Japan out.

Most Canadians, to some extent, base their plans for the year on their personal estimate as to the length of the war, which is one reason why such estimates are considered an important clue to the morale of a nation. The general public, it is true, cannot base their guesses on "inside" or expert knowledge, but most of them are willing to guess, and to plan their businesses, their private purchases and their family affairs on such guesses.

Interviewing for this survey was done during the first week in September, while Allied armies were approaching, but had not yet made contact with the German border or the Siegfried Line. Actual question used by Gallup opinion reporters was: "How much longer do you think the war with Germany will last?"

Those being interviewed (Canadians of all types) were asked to give just their best guess, in months or years on this basis. National expectations of V-Day are as follows:

German defeat by: End of September 19 per cent; end of October 22 per cent; end of November 19 per cent; end of December 11 per cent.

Total end of 1944, 71 per cent; by end of June, 1945, 20 per cent; longer 7 per cent, no opinion 2 per cent.

Optimism on the length of the German war rises higher in the western part of Canada than it does in the east, the poll finds.

When the question was repeated for the war with Japan, the general public's guess sobered considerably. Only an optimistic 6 per cent think Japan will be "hors de combat" in time for next New Year's celebrations.

Japanese defeat by: End of year 6 per cent; end of June, 1945, 23 per cent; end of 1945 34 per cent; longer 34 per cent, no opinion 3 per cent.

It is interesting to recall that early in June, just after "D-Day," the institute reported that the largest number of Canadians believed that once the invasion of Europe started, it would take about seven months to knock out Germany.

Pilchard Pack Picks Up After Bad Start

Fears that the pilchard pack this year would be a hopeless failure have now abated, and fish companies express satisfaction over the fact that the pack is twice as good as in 1942 and at least equivalent to the 1941 catch.

Pilchard fishing on the west coast of Vancouver Island is now "spotty," but good fishing in past weeks has enabled the catching of a total of 48,382 cases.

The pack at this date last year totaled 64,227 cases, but the 1943 pilchard run was abnormally large.

So late was the run in appearing this year that companies almost gave it up for lost. Once it did appear, however, heavy fishing poured the necessary quantities into canneries and reduction plants.

Pilchard boats at the present time are limited to fishing in inside waters. Only on fine days can they venture into outside waters.

Catches are averaging as high as 1,000 tons a day for all boats, with individual vessels averaging as high as 120 tons.

A total of 1,248,301 gallons of oil and 6,947 tons of meal have been obtained from pilchards so far this year.

Ontario Boxla Final

TORONTO (CP)—Whether the perennial Ontario champions—St. Catharines Athletics—will represent eastern Canada in the 1944 Mann Cup play-offs still remains in doubt.

Athletics, several times Canadian champions, Friday moved into the final round for the Ontario Lacrosse Association championship by defeating Brampton Excelsiors, 26 to 10, in the third game of a best-of-five semifinal and now meet Mimico Mountaineers for the title. Mimico recently ousted Toronto Lakeshore, 3 to 1, in the other best-of-five semifinal.

Letters to the Editor

GET ON LIST AND THEN VOTE

Today, no patriotic man or woman can afford to ignore the ordinary duties of citizenship.

As municipal government is the basis of our democratic system, it is essential that all responsible persons should vote in the municipal elections.

In Victoria, British subjects who have resided in the municipality since Jan. 1, 1944, can vote in the forthcoming election, provided they are on the voters' list. Since the voters' list closes at 5 p.m. Oct. 31, it behooves every citizen to make sure that his or her name is included on the list.

Voters are divided into three categories:

- (a) Property owners.
- (b) License holders (business or professional).
- (c) Persons who pay the poll tax ($5 and the road tax ($2).

The name of a property owner goes on the list automatically. In all other cases the voter must register with the City Clerk.

The husband or wife of a property owner is not on the list unless the property is registered in both names.

A license holder must have paid the license for the current trade license term, which expires Jan. 15 next, before he can register to vote.

It is customary for employed men and women to have their poll tax and road tax deducted from their wages and paid by the employer to the municipality. Therefore these men and women have no extra taxes to pay at the time of registration.

Persons not employed and who do not own property may register after paying the following taxes:

- Men—Poll tax and road tax.
- Women—Road tax only.

Persons over 60 years are exempt from the road tax.

The fact that a person has registered in a previous year does not necessarily mean that his or her name is retained on the list. Persons who have paid poll and road taxes, once they have registered, are retained on the list, but any exemptions (for military service, etc.) or any break in the continuity of tax payments calls for re-registration.

Very similar regulations regarding the voters' list apply in adjoining municipalities. Residents of Sanich who find it inconvenient to visit the Municipal Hall may register in Victoria with one of the following municipal registrars: Mr. H. Lethaby, Helsterman Forman Co., 608 View Street; Mr. E. E. Heath, 625 Yates Street; Mr. John Greenwood, 1241 Broad Street; Maj. C. Holmes, Pemberton & Son, 625 Fort Street.

The time is short. Persons who have not already registered, should do so without delay. Then, when election day comes, they should use their voice!

ELLEN HART,
President University Women's Club, 1513 Laurel Lane, Sept. 21.

PAID IN THEIR OWN COIN

Your recent editorials on Mr. W. C. Bullitt's article in Life were extremely interesting. While agreeing in the main with your conclusions, I cannot help wondering whether the "first one," "Bullitt's Bullets," was not misnamed, as it is not unreasonable to suspect that, while Mr. Bullitt fired them, his mysterious "Romans" may have been responsible for their manufacture.

In any case, had Mr. Bullitt's "Romans" raised their voices in protest against Franco's atrocities in Spain or the betrayal of Czechoslovakia, their present predicament might excite more sympathy. But under the circumstances it is difficult to feel anything but a certain grim amusement at seeing "the engineer hoist with his own petard." For their machinations have recoiled on their own heads.

Mr. Bullitt and his "Romans" have long been members of a sort of informal "Black International," whose chief ambition, like that of Herbert Hoover's, is to smash the Soviet Union. It is a most remarkable collection of rag tag and bobtail elements, some of whom, it is to be hoped, have now been discredited beyond all hope of ever again raising their heads. The men of Munich and the Buchanites, Trotskyites and Fascists, Norman Thomas' "Peace Now" movement and De Witt Wallace—who does not want Hitler beaten too badly, as we may need him after the war—Martin Dies and his tame seals, various Communist cast-offs, such as Deat, Doriot and Matthews, Lindbergh, the late Professor Spykman of Yale, who held that after we had beaten our enemies—Germany, Italy and Japan—we would then have to defeat our friends, the Soviet Union and China, various press tycoons of the calibre of Col. "McCosmic" of the Chicago Tribune and William Randolph Hearst, an assortment of writers and radiographers who add materially to their income by red-baiting the Cliveden set, "General Krivitsky" and "Jane Valtin" and their literary "ghosts"—various one-time "yellow-travelers" who hoped that turned-coats would further their personal ambitions, and a multitude of others too numerous, or too insignificant to mention.

What a menagerie! While it is unlikely that the intrigues of such people can now save even a remnant of European fascism, yet we must never forget that they are the kind of people whose animosity towards the Soviet Union made this war inevitable, and that by causing disunity amongst the Allied nations they may yet succeed in paving the way for a third world catastrophe. Which is just what Mr. Bullitt's "optimistic" friends in Rome—to say nothing of many other people elsewhere—hope for.

TECHNOCRACY

In answer to the letter entitled "The Technocratic Design," I wish to enlighten the public on the absurdity of some of the statements made by L. Waterlow. It certainly shows by the writings of this person that he is so prejudiced against Technocracy that he has not even bothered to investigate it. For him to criticize Technocracy is tantamount to the average person criticizing Einstein's theory of relativity.

The fact that T. Waterlow knows nothing about Technocracy is readily seen by his reference of "Iceland belonging to the German Technate of Europe." To establish a Technate outside of North America would be absolutely impossible with the huge population, small amount of natural resources and extraneous energy that exists in the countries outside of this continent, and Technocracy has proposed nothing of the sort.

One of T. Waterlow's greatest fears is that Technocracy Inc. craves totalitarian power. Perhaps he has not heard of Technocracy's total conscription program? What Technocrat, including Howard Scott himself, stands to gain any power through the adoption of this program? Should total conscription be instituted, it would be administered by our present form of government.

The above two examples are only part of the malignant and unsound article written by the misinformed T. Waterlow.

Apparently T. Waterlow is a little dubious over the situation immediately following the war. Perhaps he has the answer to the rehabilitation and permanent employment of over three-quarters of a million men now in our armed forces into a country that has produced far more in the last year without them than in any peacetime year?

No, T. Waterlow, I would suggest that you investigate, not ridicule the facts. The informed are laughing at you.

TECHNOCRACY

As a resident of B.C. for 38 years, with two years' service in France in World War I, and two boys in this war, I would esteem it a favor if you would insert the following letter in your paper in answer to "The Technocratic Design," by L. Waterlow, appearing in your issue of Sept. 16.

Using Mr. Waterlow's phraseology, to wit, "Due to the opportunity afforded by free speech and a free press," it is not to be wondered at that letters will appear in the press containing nothing but misinformation, particularly when the writer knows that factual information regarding his subject will most probably be refused space.

The press has been noticeably silent regarding Technocracy, which is viewed from the information found in the Encyclopedia Americana, as follows: "Whatever the future of Technocracy, one must fairly say that it is the only program of social and economic reconstruction which is in complete accord with the age in which we live."

Navy Beats Army In Baseball at Honolulu

HONOLULU (AP)—Virgil Trucks, former Detroit Tiger pitcher, hurled a neat four-hitter Friday as the Navy blanked the Army, 5 to 0, in the opener of seven-game Army-Navy baseball series.

Trucks struck out five and fanned Joe Gordon, ex-New York Yankee, for the final out, while the sailors banged all their runs and nine of their 10 hits off Johnny Beazley, former St. Louis Cardinals chucker.

Trucks helped win his own game by collecting two hits, one of them driving in a run.

Furlong Stadium, which seats only a few thousands, was jammed for the opener, which displayed some of the best talent in prewar major league baseball.

Navy Lieut. Bill Dickey, former New York Yankee, had charge of the Navy team, assembled from the islands and the mainland.

NATIONAL UNITY

FROM THE PULPIT, THE PLATFORM and the press has come a spate of appeal and argument with Canadian unity—the lack of it and the need of it—as the central and urgent theme. Much of it has paid scant respect to realities, some of it has worn the tinge of political bias, and the rest has been notable for the ease with which it has by-passed the basic issue—the demand for a practical approach. The result of all this timidity, this shirking of individual responsibility, is confusion worse confounded.

Some important factors inherent in a condition which none blinks found voice in the able, searching, and provocative disquisition on the subject of national unity to which Dr. B. K. Sandwell, editor of Saturday Night, treated the members of the Victoria Canadian Club at their luncheon yesterday. The distinguished visiting publicist and author did not require to indulge in propaganda, to underscore truths that should be plain to all intelligent people, or to labor those economic, political and sectional snafus whose frequent emphasis inflames passions and exaggerates prejudices.

Basing his survey of the national scene on the truism that our sovereignty—or our national patriotism—often is lightly regarded in the absence of any threat to its existence, Dr. Sandwell drew fitting attention to the self-evident fact that the province of origin of the valiant Canadians who are fighting our battles in Europe is never the subject of serious question or argument over there. By that token, then, what impression will they obtain of our conduct on their return if they find any appreciable element of the public engaged in the old controversies that are productive only of divisions and dissensions? This is facing the question. It presupposes that we, Canadians in every part of Canada, ought to decide what we propose to do about it.

We had better measure up to this responsibility. For it is our duty to understand what we mean when we loudly declaim in song that we stand on guard for Canada. Speaking as a journalist, one who understands that this Dominion's peaceful progress can be achieved only by more practical demonstrations of that teamwork which has won for our fighting men overseas world-wide praise, Dr. Sandwell was correct in his warning that much still remains to be done for the cause of national unity—in the pulpit, on the platform and by the press.

THAT TWO-THIRDS MAJORITY

CANADIAN AS WELL AS AMERICAN newspapers, regardless of their political persuasion, continue to devote considerable space to a discussion of the article which Collier's weekly recently published under Mr. Wendell L. Willkie's name—entitled "Cowardice at Chicago." As already mentioned in these columns, part of this was an attack on the foreign policy planks that the two parties nailed into their respective convention platforms. Neither satisfied the unsuccessful 1940 G.O.P. standard-bearer. Of the two plans, however, he found that of the Democrats rather more practical than that of the party to which he belongs.

What has burned itself into Mr. Willkie's soul is the constitutional provision which permits a minority of the United States Senate to frustrate the will of the majority in the formulation of sound international agreements; he is strenuously opposed to the two-thirds rule which has operated to nullify "every major effort at international collaboration" by his country. The particular target of his argument is the clause in the Republican Party platform which pledges that "in the attainment of our international aims and any treaty or agreement to attain such aims made on behalf of the United States with any other nation or any association of nations shall be made only by and with the advice and consent of the Senate of the United States, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur." Presumably this would bring within the veto power of a Senate minority even such commercial instruments as reciprocal trade agreements. It would enable a small dissident bloc of Senators, representing perhaps no more than one-twelfth of the population, to nullify an exchange stabilization compact such as the one recently agreed upon by the representatives of 44 nations at Bretton Woods. Mr. Willkie says such proposals "not only have no basis in the Constitution but fly in the face of the practice of every President beginning with and including George Washington, a practice which has never been seriously questioned by the Supreme Court."

The discussion which has followed the publication of Mr. Willkie's article is notable for demands for an amendment of Article II, Section 2 of the Constitution—framed by the Founding Fathers at a time when the Senate was very small for the express purpose of enabling the President to by-pass the House of Representatives "in the interest of secrecy and dispatch if that seemed expedient." This view is ably supported in an article by Prof. Quincy Wright in the American Journal of International Law which comes to this conclusion:

"The difficulties which have in the past been found in the two-thirds vote in the Senate appear to have arisen from political timidity and conservatism."

tional misapprehension. There has never been any constitutional bar to concluding international agreements within the scope of congressional power if desired by the President and a majority in both Houses. Not only is it legally permissible to by-pass the two-thirds rule, but it is politically practicable. If the President can command a majority of both houses, the necessary appropriations and laws can be passed to implement any international agreement within the powers of Congress; and a Senate minority is powerless to prevent it."

While Mr. Willkie deplors any constitutional mechanism which thwarts the will of the people—who, after all, shudder at the thought of another world war as much as any other people—he offered the Republican convention his own concept of a foreign policy with which the party managers would have nothing to do. This advocated, among other things, "the use of American sovereignty in co-operation with other powers to create continuing international organization for the good of all with the power to uphold its decisions by force if necessary. For our sovereignty is something to be used, not hoarded. Each nation should maintain land, sea, and air forces to be used collaboratively, in agreed situations and within agreed limits, to prevent aggression." It now remains to be seen what Mr. Willkie will say or do when he comes out of hospital—where he is undergoing a general check-up.

MR. MAYHEW TO RUN AGAIN

NEARLY SEVEN YEARS HAVE PASSED since Mr. R. W. Mayhew won the right to sit in the House of Commons as Victoria's member of Parliament. Not only did he score a striking personal victory at the polls on that November day in 1937; he transferred the representation of this important federal constituency from its traditional Conservative adherence to a long-overdue acceptance of the Liberal faith—no mean achievement for a citizen aspiring to public office for the first time. And to say that the great majority of the electors are more than convinced they acted in their own and the community's interests is woefully to undervalue their appreciation of the painstaking, aggressive and essentially human service he has rendered and continues to render in their behalf at Ottawa.

Nor do we hesitate to suggest that the announcement yesterday intimating Mr. Mayhew's decision to allow his name to be placed in nomination as a candidate in the forthcoming Dominion general election will have been welcomed by most of the electors of the riding. Moreover, we feel sure these include very many Conservatives who are Progressive enough to be influenced more by a magnificent record of practical effort and achievement than by party nomenclature prefixed by an adjective which contradicts the other half of the term.

It is neither within our province nor in keeping with our practice to try to look into the political future. He who wagers on elections, horse races or the weather trifles with the imponderables. But if the nomination of the party under whose banner Mr. Mayhew won his first political battle of the ballots in 1937, scoring an even more impressive triumph in 1940, should be tendered to him again, it would not surprise us in the least if he headed the poll with a greater majority than on former occasions. In the meantime, however, this newspaper adds its own to the many congratulations already being received by the city member on his decision.

BUILDERS FOR TOMORROW

LIKE CANADIAN INDUSTRY AS A whole, the construction industry may justly take pride in having done a wonderful job during the war. It arose to the needs of the occasion to meet in full measure what seemed to be the unlimited demands of the army, navy and air force as well as those of mushrooming war industries.

As we make the transition to peace, the construction business will play a role no less important. It will be called on to make up a backlog of private and public building estimated at $3,000,000,000, including a shortage of some 300,000 houses. In this it will be undertaking probably the most extensive job in Canada after the war. To it, more than to any other country, we shall turn with hope of finding large-scale employment during the months when men in large numbers will be leaving the war services and war industries. Thus, it will be a central factor on the practical end in effecting rehabilitation and economic stabilization.

Already the second greatest employer of labor in the country, it will be essential to our national economy at the close of hostilities that the construction industry be prepared to offer full employment without delay. In its expenditure it commands the "swiftest dollar." That is, in the sense of the speed and directness with which it penetrates to all branches of our national economy. With 80 out of every 100 cents going to labor, the effects of the building dollar are felt more immediately and in a greater number of businesses and industries than those of the dollar spent by any other entrepreneur. Thus, for the early postwar period when maximum employment will be a primary objective, this industry is unique in the high promise it holds.

That the leaders of the construction industry are seized of their wider responsibilities in the matter, as well as trade opportunities, is evidenced by the fact-finding tour across the country which has brought the chief officers of the Canadian Construction Association to Victoria this week to confer with the men in the various branches of the industry here. These men are now planning for their postwar task in an earnest and intelligent manner. As providers of the material basis for a healthier, better served and happier population, they are builders of our future society and developers of the nation.

When Wallace died politically at Chicago, Shakespeare provided his true and exact epitaph: "Damned with faint praise."

Loose Ends

THE STRAIN TELLS

COMPARED WITH what the people of Europe and Asia have gone through these last five years, life in Canada has been singularly serene. We would have some difficulty in convincing the people of Britain, France or Russia that we have been under any strain. Yet strain there has been, and the strain is beginning to tell.

An aura of preoccupation has descended upon Canada. We tend more and more to think about everything except the job in hand. The signs are everywhere—on the streets, in the stores, on streetcars, indeed wherever Canadians come together en masse.

We drive fewer automobiles than we have for years, yet traffic accidents increase rather than decline. We leave more articles on streetcars and trains, and lose more personal belongings. We listen to the radio and hear only half of what is being said. We forget to do all kinds of things that would not have been forgotten before.

ON OUR STREETS, more people thread their way through vehicular traffic in a daze than before. Jaywalking has reached new heights in our town, where it was always an outstanding characteristic of pedestrians. And jay-drivers, people who drive through heavy traffic as if they were in the centre of the prairie, have increased by geometric progression.

Yes, there is a strain in Canada and it is a strain which comes from sending our boys to fight on far-off battlefields. It is a strain peculiar to this country. No bomb has ever fallen on Canada to give us the sense of living in the front lines. We cannot rush out to bomb-shelters, or to put out fires, or even stand watch in the night for enemy planes. These things provide others with a feeling of actual participation in the war. In Canada this feeling is lacking. We can only sit and wait; and wonder and worry and wake up with a start in the middle of the night.

A TELEGRAPH MESSENGER TURNS down the street, and who can resist the temptation to watch his progress as he goes to your house? To a neighbor's? And what are his tidings—a boy coming home on leave or a terse message from Ottawa which will bring the awful tragedy of war home to another Canadian home?

The cables tell of great bombing raids on Germany. Thousands of Canadians went over, a dozen planes were lost. Was Johnny or Mike or Bill on that raid? Could he have been lost? When the telephone rings, a startled household turns with one thought to the member who is so far away.

"The Canadians, after a desperate struggle, have taken —" Yes, the Canadians, the Canadian Army. But in thousands of our homes the reaction is different. It is not the Canadian Army; it is Johnny or Mike or Bill. He actually may be back at the base loading trucks or having some fun on leave; but in the minds of his family members the Canadian army at once conjures up visions of a boy they love so much in the midst of terrible danger.

Yes, we are preoccupied. The strain is beginning to tell—the strain of endless watching, endless waiting, and an uncertainty that gnaws on our hearts and our nerve-ends. It is a strain peculiar to ourselves, one which people who live in the front lines cannot understand. When the boys come home they will see the effects of the strain, but the cause will be deeply hidden even from them.

THE YOUNG WITCH

Under the yellow-green
Hazel tree,
Mounting her broomstick
She turned on me

The wild clear glance
Of her agate-grey eyes—
And swift as a swallow
She took the skies.

She had no need
Of charm or rune
Or ring-stepped widdershins
Under the moon—

She needed no spell
But her wild clear eye
To bind me and fetter me
Till I die.

Whether the moon wax,
Whether it wane,
I'll seek her in Muscovy,
China, Spain.

Whether the sun rise,
Whether it set—
I'll follow forever,
I'll find her yet.

I'll build her a house
If she so desire,
Of the starlight's silver,
The rainbow's fire.

She shall wear satin
And sable-furs—
And her heart shall be mine
As my heart's hers.

RIGHT OF SANCTUARY

The Daily News, speaking of the vanishing right of sanctuary, tells us that "in the old days before Christ, very little sanctuary was ever extended to defeated war leaders. Alexander the Great, capturing the Persian usurper, Bessus, who had just killed King Darius II, first jailed Bessus and then had him executed (330 B.C.)." After this breathless bit of information, the News thinks it "might be a healthy thing" to make a practice of chopping off heads of leaders of nations that lose wars. This "might dampen the warlike ardor of many a national leader," says the News—and you can read it any way you like.

Today's WAR NEWS Analysis

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
Associated Press War Analyst

It is hardly proper to refer to the impending "rescue" of the British airborne troops at Arnhem. You don't rescue men who, deliberately assigned to a difficult post, stand and slug regardless of odds. You don't rescue men who laugh and curse the enemy's surrender suggestions.

Nor, strictly speaking, is the advancing British 2nd Army a "relief" column. It may have that effect on the encircled airborne troops. But technically the whole operation is part of an offensive, deliberately planned so that Gen. Brereton's air army could help clear the way for the main ground armies in their advance across the Holland water barriers. The 2nd Army is heading for the capture of Arnhem and the invasion of the German Ruhr. It's not a "relief" job.

There is a difference between the air army which deliberately put itself in the German circle and an army which has walked into a trap.

Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, a week, every day longer than the last, every man a target for German field pieces which can be countered only with comparatively light equipment which could be flown in.

A correspondent with them writes of the German surrender broadcast: "It was a silly thing to do. It made these chaps hopping mad. You should have heard their language."

And another writes: "And though our men, some of them, are hard put to it not to fall asleep over their guns, they go on fighting and go on attacking and one day perhaps the world will learn the full story of what they have done here."

Men fighting unflinchingly for their objective, fulfilling their orders. Men the world will cheer when their support arrives. But not men to be "rescued."

THIS WAR FOUR YEARS AGO Sept. 23, 1940—George Cross for gallantry by civilians created. Combined British-Free French force under Gen. de Gaulle fired on Dakar, French West Africa. German subs sank 159,288 of merchant shipping in week ending Sept. 23.

Sept. 24, 1940—R.A.F. bombers sank two enemy minesweepers in Channel and damaged another. Gen. de Gaulle withdrew troops and ships from Dakar. Finland permitted transport of German troops and supplies to Norway through her territory.

Victoria Doctor In Guiana Studying Tropical Diseases

SURG.-LIEUT. J. W. HACKNEY

Surg.-Lieut. John W. Hackney, R.C.N., is one of the three Canadian doctors now studying tropical medicine in British Guiana, through the co-operation of McGill University and the Aluminum Company of Canada. Lieut. Hackney is the son of Dr. and Mrs. William Hackney, 960 Joan Crescent. He received his high school education at University School prior to studying medicine at McGill University.

"For the first time in the history of medicine," Dr. F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University, announced, "a diploma in tropical medicine has been instituted which requires clinical training in tropical diseases on the spot. The course combines laboratory work in temperate climates and clinical work in the tropics."

"The idea is entirely new anywhere in the world," said Dr. James.

The three medical officers of the Canadian Navy—H. H. McKinnon, Robert H. Lennox and Hackney—are in British Guiana, where for a few months they will undergo clinical and pathological training under tropical conditions. This training, the first of its kind ever received by a doctor, is part of the postgraduate course instituted at McGill University rather more than six months ago.

The three doctors had previously taken a course in parasitology under Dr. T. W. M. Cameron, director of the Institute of Parasitology at McGill, top-ranking authority in this field, not only in Canada but throughout the world.

The institute, which is the only one of its kind in the country, was established 20 years ago in conjunction with the Empire Marketing Board and is at Ste. Anne de Bellevue. As parasitology is one of the fundamental studies in tropical medicine, all doctors taking the postgraduate course will be expected to attend

Scheme Suggested For Soldiers' Homes

The problem of providing adequate housing for servicemen's families here could be solved if private interests formed a limited dividend company to construct rental homes under new federal housing regulations.

Ste. Anne de Bellevue before leaving for British Guiana.

on dollar lots supplied by the city, R. W. Mayhew, M.P., said. He suggested the city's offer of lots on terms similar to those given Wartime Housing Ltd. be extended to any private concern which took advantage of the federal offer. Under the Dominion scheme, Ottawa provides $9 for each dollar put up by responsible private interests for construction of rental homes. Establishment of such a concern in Victoria could be initiated by any responsible citizen, Mr. Mayhew said.

"If the city were to extend its dollar lot offer to a limited dividend company under the new housing set-up, a scheme could be evolved to provide homes for servicemen's families," he said. He explained construction of such houses would be done by the citizens forming a corporation. Tenants, he said, could get cheaper rents than if the houses were built by the government. The city would also benefit in so far as it could secure taxes on the properties.

Such a corporation, Mr. Mayhew added, could secure construction priorities second only to the rating given hospitals. He mentioned operation of such concerns in Montreal and Toronto.

Ald. T. W. Hawkins, city lands committee chairman, with whom the matter was discussed, said the plan would be considered by the committee at its meeting next Thursday.

Important Car Deal Before Appeal Court

Court of Appeal, with Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran presiding, Friday reserved judgment on the appeal of Wilson and Cabellu Ltd. from Judge H. H. Shandley's County Court decision instructing them to return to Clifford Robbins $332.29, the proceeds from the sale of Robbins' car.

The action is an important test case covering contracts and the effect on them of war conditions. According to the evidence, Robbins sold to the company a second-hand car for $725 on the understanding the firm would pay off $392.71 owed to a finance company on the car and devote the remaining $332.29 towards a new car for Robbins, to be purchased within five years.

When Robbins sought his new car, the company could not sell him one, since Robbins could not secure from the motor vehicle controller the required permit to purchase.

Robbins claimed the $332.29 on the grounds the contract had been frustrated. His claim was sustained by Judge Shandley.

In today's appeal, Alfred Bull, K.C., counsel with W. H. M. Haldane for the company, contended Robbins had no right of recovery. The company, Mr. Bull said, took the position it had cars to sell, but that Robbins had not qualified to purchase one through inability to secure a permit.

Major argument turned on the question of frustration, with Mr. Bull saying Robbins still had the right to buy, with two years to run in the five-year period during which his agreement held.

Norman Whittaker, K.C., for Robbins, said the agreement signed by his client provided for use of the $332.29 toward purchase of a new car, but did not cover frustration.

The contract had been frustrated by the regulation calling for a permit, he said. While there were two years to run in the five-year purchase clause, there was no assurance his client would be in a position to secure a permit in that time and consequently faced the ultimate loss of his money.

The Fibrosa Spolka Akcyjna vs. Fairbairn Lawson Combe Barbour Ltd. case, a new authority on the point, was generally examined in the case.

West Coast Pioneer Recalls C.P.R. Construction Days

By KAY MCINTYRE

Ritchie S. Gallop, who made his way to the coast from the Rockies 61 years ago by an old game trail, can tell many a story of the construction of the C.P.R. and the famous men who helped build the railroad.

In Victoria for a few days from his home near Jordan River, Mr. Gallop recalled how Bill MacKenzie, later Sir William, had a contract for the Ottertail Bridge, constructed from wood between Field and Golden and now replaced by steel. In 1883 MacKenzie was a school teacher turned railroad man, and Mr. Gallop worked on the bridge the former had contracted to build.

"They brought axmen out to the Rockies and fashioned the lumber needed right there," he said. "I helped get the timber out of the bush. Below the bridge were Benders Flats, where Pat Burns used to drive his cattle in to be slaughtered. Burns visited the railroad camp occasionally, although he spent most of his time on the prairies then buying cattle."

OVER THE SELKIRKS

Once his work on the Ottertail Bridge was over Mr. Gallop set out on his way to the coast again with his friend, Henry Underbrink. At Golden they bought horses, followed the trail of the Columbia River and crossed the summit of the Selkirk. At Shuswap Lake they met G. B. Wright, another railway man whose name is linked with the C.P.R. and who had contracted to build the railroad from the lake up Eagle River to the east.

"Kamloops had just a few houses," he said. "Capt. Troup, who later became superintendent of the B.C. coast service for the C.P.R., was running a steamer from Kamloops to Eagle Pass. From his boat you could see the lake thick with fish, so many of them that it was an incredible sight."

Near Kamloops, too, he met Jack Kirkup, six feet five inches tall, and the provincial policeman feared by all law-breakers. The first time he saw Kirkup he had two prisoners chained to his wrists. At Sicamous there was Col. Forester, who built the town's first hotel on the site of the present C.P.R. hotel.

Mr. Gallop also worked on the railroad construction section from Port Moody to Vancouver and helped survey the site for the mainland city. Jack Stewart, who later became a general, worked with him.

He remembers a smallpox epidemic in Nanaimo soon after he arrived in 1884 and recalled that in all the "wild bunch" camped there only one man died of the disease and he was the only one who stayed home and saved his money.

Ritchie S. Gallop... 61 years ago he helped build C.P.R.

Other men whose names are written into the history of the C.P.R. with whom Mr. Gallop worked are the two Kitchin brothers, who had a contract for the railroad east of the Ottertail Bridge; Mike Carlin, who made his home on Rockland Avenue for many years, and Joe Lake, who were getting out timber west of the bridge, Bob Galbraith and "Big Jim" Macdonnell, both C.P.R. contractors.

BOB GREEN'S STORE

Senator R. F. Green, old-time Victorian, who makes his home at 502 Rupert Street, is one old friend whom he always looks up when he is in town. More than 50 years ago Bob Green and his brother had a store at Illecilewatt and later at Kaslo, where Mr. Galbraith used to deal.

After completion of the C.P.R. Mr. Gallop took up mining in the Kootenays, later settling at Port Renfrew. There he put in a hydraulic washer with a mile of pipe and had just begun operations at the outbreak of the first Great War. Still later he was associated with Senator Helfner of Seattle then returned to Port Renfrew, where he says he is waiting for the end of this war so he can begin mining again.

Victoria Nature Walks

AT TURKEY HEAD

On the nautical charts, the rocky corner where stands the Oak Bay boathouse is called Turkey Head. It marks the southern boundary of the bay's long stretch of shore and between its two points it encloses a little squarish cove.

Around the more eastern of the two I spent some time the other afternoon looking for plants over and about the strongly glaciated rocks. Growing in the shallow soil and by its dark green foliage contrasting with the sere and yellow leaf of the surrounding herbage the common knotgrass caught the eye with its spreading scanty mats. Its botanical name, Polygonum aviculare, reminds us that it is a favorite with small birds because of its abundant seeds. This widespread plant of our northern hemisphere is known, or used to be, on the prairies as "white-man's footstep," although it is also said that this name was given by the Indians to the rat-tail plantain because it marked where the white man had been.

In the English language alone the common knotgrass has 20 or more names—some of them are doornod, bird's-tares, beggarweed, cowgrass, ninety-knot, sparrow-tongue, and pinkweed. In olden days it had a reputation founded perhaps on its lowly habit. An infusion of it was given to stop or slow down the growth of animals and human beings. So in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" Lysander says to Hermia: "Get you gone, you dwarf; you minims of hindering knotgrass made, you bead, you acorn!" And in a play of Beaumont and Fletcher we read of a boy "kept under for a year with milk and knotgrass." It is said to have been used to produce a dye of indigo blue color. More interesting is an account of its leaves being used in Italy to feed silkworms so that silk was procured from them in 16 days, and the worms could be reared even in winter. The knotgrass was said to be preferred by the silkworms to mulberry leaves.

The autumnal knotweed, another species peculiar to this coast, I have referred to before. Here at Turkey Head it is at present in full rich flower. The blossoming plant looks a little like some form of diminutive heath at a first glance, though its individual flowers are wide open and flatish. A few other plants frequently overlooked are worth noticing. One that resembles a wormwood by its much divided leaves is the sand-bur, the twice pinnate-leaved Franseria, to give the English of its botanical name. A Franseria was a Spanish botanist, perhaps connected with the early history of the Pacific Coast, to which this plant peculiarly belongs. Its flowers are not conspicuous, but at this season it is the curious dark prickly burs that attract attention by touch more than by eye. They are a little like those of the ragweed or ambrosia, but are not content with the ragweed's single row of spines and are therefore more prickly.

Close by I found the seashore orach with its pinkish striped stems and narrow mealy leaves, which on examination prove to be spangled with little scales like very refined bran. The fruits have two fleshy bracts with small spines, which, however, are not at all prickly. The orach, Orache patula, belongs to the same family as the sugar and table beets and the spinach. All of them seem to have a natural fondness for salty places and are found by the seacoast and salty marshes in North America, Europe, Asia and North Africa, and this species extends into Arctic regions. The particular plant I found belongs to the variety littoralis.

On the rocks among the crevices and hollows and growing so low as to be often very hard to see is the marine sand-spurry, or Spergularia maritima, a relative of the carnation and pink. Its foliage is greyish green with glandular hairs, whose stickiness attracts minute grains of sand. Its flowers are pale pink; its leaves cylindrical, narrowing at each end and fleshy. These are a few of the less conspicuous but interesting plants in this small area by the sea.

The Canadian Pacific Railway told city police Thursday five books, each containing 25 bus tickets, had been stolen.

No air-conditioned railroad equipment is in use in Brazil on its 21,000 miles of railways.

WHILE A TRIO OF CLUBS are staging a real dogfight for the American League baseball championship, the 1944 National League pennant flies over the dugout of the St. Louis Cardinals—the first time in 20 years it has adorned the same flagpole three successive seasons. After dropping 11 of their last 14 games, Billy Southworth's lads clinched the title Thursday.

THE CARDINALS WON THE PENNANT by 18 games last season. At one stage of the current campaign they paced the pack by 20, a bigger margin than the first-place team in the American League ever boasted over the last. The last club to win three or more championships in a row was John McGraw's New York Giants, who captured four from 1921 to 1924. Only three other teams, the Pittsburgh Pirates of 1901-1903, the Chicago Cubs of 1906-1908 and the Giants of 1911-1913 won three straight since 1900.

SOUTHWORTH, FIRST CARDINAL manager to win three pennants, should also become the first National League pilot to win more than 100 games for three successive years. The Cards won 106 in 1942, 105 in 1943 and have already won 98 games this season. Except at the start, when the Giants won six of the first seven games, the Cards dominated the league. They took the lead April 29 and never relinquished it. Their biggest winning streak was nine, from Aug. 6 to Aug. 20. Of the 41 series to date, St. Louis has won 23, lost seven and tied five. From July 1 to Aug. 6, they captured 10 straight sets.

A GREAT CONTRIBUTION to the club's success was the all-round play of Marty Marion. The shortstop's flawless field work and timely hitting may elect him the league's most valuable player. Outfielder Stan Musial, not far behind, is in the running for the league batting title, being second to Brooklyn's Dixie Walker, pacing the circuit with a mark of .361.

SIGNING A CONTRACT with the National Hockey League, New York Rangers is a real break for Laurel Harney. Although not a rookie by any means, Harney still has a lot of hockey left in his system, but more important is the fact that he will get a shot at a coaching job. I don't think Harney has much hope of landing the number one goalie spot with Lester Patrick's squad but is more interested in the chance to play with and coach the New York Rovers, farm club of the Rangers.

EVER SINCE I MET HARNEY, when he came to Victoria three years ago from Turner Valley to play with the Bapcos, he has talked about his ambitions to become a hockey coach. Harney has very definite ideas on how a hockey squad should be operated and will certainly welcome an opportunity to put his system into practice. Landing a position with an organization like the Rangers puts Laurel in an enviable position. He will be given every chance to make good and, with a master strategist like Patrick to lend him a helping hand, should be successful. Harney has always had a great fighting heart as a player and will likely instill the same "will to win" spirit into any club he handles. The Alberta-born Athlete has provided some great entertainment for Victoria sport fans who will be sorry to hear of his departure. I, along with many others, hope he will be back next spring for another season of baseball.

Veteran Beck Saves Game for Detroit

Walter (Boom Boom) Beck, a veteran relief performer who was pitching in the American League when Hal Newhouser was a three-year-old kiddie car rider and Paul Trout was a third-grade schoolboy, was one reason Detroit was still in first place today.

With only a week and a day of the season remaining, the Tigers held a one-game edge on St. Louis because Beck had the stuff to hold back Boston in the second game of an important double-header at Detroit yesterday after coming through with a single and scoring the winning run of an 8 to 6 victory. Steve O'Neill's crew had won the opener, 7 to 4, on Dick Wakefield's grand-slam homer.

St. Louis shaded Philadelphia last night, 4 to 2, and would have tied for the lead if Beck hadn't put the bracelets on the Red Sox in a two-inning job.

Beck hadn't won all season after hooking on with the Tigers when he got the gate from a manager's job with Utica Braves of the Eastern League. If Detroit cops the flag, the old-timer, who has seen them all from Palestine, Texas, to the big show, will have the biggest pay day of his career.

New York kept its hopes alive by topping Cleveland, 7 to 3, with a 17-hit attack behind Ernie Bonham in a series opener. The Yanks trailed Detroit by three and a half games with 10 to play.

When Joe Hoving relieved Al Smith in the seventh inning, the big league's only grandpa tied an American League record by appearing in his 61st game, none complete. Clint Brown set the mark for Chicago in 1939. Ed Walsh holds the record for most games, complete or unfinished, with 66 in the American in 1909. Ace Adams of the New York Giants appeared in 70 for a modern National record last year.

The newly-crowned St. Louis Cardinals were humiliated, 11 to 2, by Boston's Nate Andrews and Chicago took a strangle hold on Giants, 8 to 1, in the only National League contests.

The champion Los Angeles Angels and the San Francisco Seals registered their initial Coast League baseball playoff victories last night, Los Angeles downing Portland, 5 to 4, and San Francisco blanking Oakland, 1 to 0.

The Angels were saved in the sixth by Pancho Comellas, who relieved Don Osborn and held Portland hitless the rest of the game. The Angels won in the seventh as Cecil Garriott scored the winning run on Ed Sauer's single.

The Seals tallied their lone run as Gus Suhr singled Joe Futernick home in the third inning.

PRACTICE SOCCER

Feature Derby Goes To Delayed Action

By PETE SALLAWAY

Mrs. H. Heywood's chestnut gelding Delayed Action ran in reverse at the Willows track Friday to capture the feature Victoria Derby over a mile and one-sixteenth, for three-year-olds, by three lengths. With the crack still heavy, the favorites had another tough day, with the public choices getting down in only three out of the seven races. Double figures were posted for the winners three times during the afternoon. Attendance was good and the betting up.

Third choice in the betting, Delayed Action, with Alex Haller up, took command of the field at the half, beat off a challenge by Lady A. A. in the backstretch and went on to win by three lengths, with Lady A. A. second and Kelley Somers third. Priarworth, established favorite in the mutuels, stopped after being up with the field until the half pole.

Opening race of the day saw the favorite hit the wire in the win slot when The Mouse moved out in front, entering the stretch to finish two lengths ahead of Naperton, with Lady Serajevo in the show spot.

Beating the fast-breaking Duddington and Penicuk to the first turn and the rail position, Lev's Dust was never headed in the second over the sprint route of five and one-half furlongs. Belle Park and Welbeck, two outsiders, both closed fast in the stretch to finish second and third, respectively. Penicuk stopped after hitting the far turn, while Duddington, the odds-on favorite, weakened in the final drive.

THRILLING DUEL

Sweet Olive and The Past, co-favorites in the third, ran one-two after a thrilling head-and-head duel down the backstretch. The pair held command of the race all by themselves, with Bahash running third, six lengths back. Another front-runner took the fourth over five and one-half furlongs, when Sariworth grabbed the lead from the break and won by two lengths over Eno-Heather.

Eleven claims were put in for Flying Su, with J. G. Bremner taking the horse in the roll-off. Daily double from The Mouse to Lev's Dust was worth $42, while a one-two bet in the seventh on Flying Su and Maratimer brought back $33.30.

Emil Sporti and Alex Haller shared the riding honors, each with a pair-of winners. Other winning mounts went to Jimmy Sivewright, Johnny Hruschak and Frankie Wilbourn.

Mauriello Puts Over Knockout After Rough Time

NEW YORK (AP)—Tami Mauriello, New York heavyweight, knocked out Lee Oma of Detroit Friday night in 1:41 of the eighth round of a scheduled 10-rounder in Madison Square Garden. A left hook to the chin did it. Mauriello weighed 194, Oma 193.

The bout, in which Mauriello was a prohibitive favorite, drew 10,496 fans and a gate of $24,280. Oma, who retired from the ring in 1942 after being knocked out in seven of 10 fights in 1941, was on the verge of scrambling the heavy-weight situation when the end came. He was far ahead of Mauriello, second ranking civilian heavy, up to the time Tami uncocked the winning punch.

Oma took the bout on a couple of days' notice as a substitute for Joe Baksi of Kulpmont, Pa., who bowed out because of a cold and drew a 45-day suspension from the New York Athletic Commission.

TAMI GOES DOWN

For the first three rounds of the bout, Mauriello held the straight at his sides most of the time, made a punching bag of Tami, spilling him for a one-count halted by the bell in the fourth round.

After winning the first three rounds, Oma lost the fourth by taking a bad beating, but held Tami even in the fifth, Mauriello won the sixth by a shade, but Oma came on fast to take the seventh with a flurry, during which he had Mauriello groggy by landing six or seven rights and lefts to the head without a return.

Oma appeared to have a shade the better of the early going in the eighth, and the ringsiders were looking for the year's biggest heavyweight upset when Tami caught the Detroit on the ropes, whipped over a left hook to the chin and Oma went down for the fourth time.

It was Mauriello's fourth straight knockout victory since he dropped a decision to Baksi in the Garden last February.

Resigns

DR. W. J. MCKEON

After having officiated for 15 years as president steward and handicapper on Victoria and Vancouver tracks, Dr. McKeon has turned in his resignation. A Victoria native, McKeon has been associated with racing in this province for better than 20 years and his loss to the sport will be keenly felt. Thursday McKeon informed S. W. Randall, president of the Vancouver Thoroughbred Association, and a director of the Colwood Park Association, he was through. When asked for his reasons in giving up the position McKeon jokingly said: "Well, I just wanted to beat them to the punch when it looked as if I might get fired."

With Zelpa Lad third, Jazz Lady, established a definite favorite, never showed a liking for the going.

Starting at better than 5 to 1, Toy Broom spreadeagled his field in the sixth over six furlongs and 30 yards, to win by 10 lengths, the biggest margin at the track since the meeting opened. Backed down to 95 cents on the dollar in the seventh, Flying Su lived up to the confidence of her backers by heading Maratimer to the wire by three lengths. Sir Broxa ran third.

Eleven claims were put in for Flying Su, with J. G. Bremner taking the horse in the roll-off. Daily double from The Mouse to Lev's Dust was worth $42, while a one-two bet in the seventh on Flying Su and Maratimer brought back $33.30.

Emil Sporti and Alex Haller shared the riding honors, each with a pair-of winners. Other winning mounts went to Jimmy Sivewright, Johnny Hruschak and Frankie Wilbourn.

Real Meaning of 'Love'

Thy Neighbor As Thyself

SELF-REGARD is another native emotion not to be despised or suppressed, but educated, directed, and used. At no point have conventional moralists done personality more disservice than in their disparagement of self-love. They sometimes wield the word "selfishness" like a bludgeon, cracking down on all forms of self-consideration until sensitive consciences are persuaded that whatever is to one's own advantage is likely to be wrong. Shakespeare's sound sense can not be denied:

"Self-love, my liege, is not so vile a sin
As self-neglecting."

Indeed, a greater than Shakespeare based his summaries of the moral law squarely on self-regard. "Love . . . thy neighbor as thyself" involves the proposal that we start with the love of self, take its measure, give full scope to its meaning at its best, and then love our neighbor in the same way. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them" is impossible of fulfillment unless one begins with self-consideration and then extends the same consideration to others. Jesus' ethic plainly involves not the suppression of self-regard but its sublimation.

From self-regard when it goes wrong spring vanity and pride, avarice and greed, meanness and cruelty. Some people live habitually in the spirit with which Mascardi dedicated his opera, "The Mask": "To myself, with distinguished esteem and unalterable satisfaction." When, however, it is proposed as a remedy

Creed
If they should ask you,
"Why do you fight?"
Tell them, "For Freedom. For the right
To live in peace; to worship God;
To build a cottage, turn a sod
That is my own; to trust my friends;
To know that when the work day ends,
A wife and children wait to greet
Me with a smile. I fight to meet
The future unshamed; to read
What books I will; to choose the creed
I wish; face politicians unafraid,
And criticize, if need be, laws they've made.
These are the web of life; For these
I lend
My strength; these are the rights that I defend."

As self-neglecting."

Indeed, a greater than Shakespeare based his summaries of the moral law squarely on self-regard. "Love . . . thy neighbor as thyself" involves the proposal that we start with the love of self, take its measure, give full scope to its meaning at its best, and then love our neighbor in the same way. "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them" is impossible of fulfillment unless one begins with self-consideration and then extends the same consideration to others. Jesus' ethic plainly involves not the suppression of self-regard but its sublimation.

Some people live habitually in the spirit with which Mascardi dedicated his opera, "The Mask": "To myself, with distinguished esteem and unalterable satisfaction." When, however, it is proposed as a remedy

Chest Agencies Do Good Work Without Fanfare

Less than half the citizens of Victoria contribute to the Community Chest during its annual campaign, Raymond Jones, campaign manager, said today, but he is firmly of the opinion that if people took the trouble to get better acquainted with the magnificent work that the 20 member agencies do, everyone would contribute, and those who now do contribute would double the amounts.

For instance, Mr. Jones cited the fine work that is unobtrusively done year after year by the John Howard Society. Mrs. W. E. M. Mitchell, secretary of the society, said that during the past year the society has worked with 50 young men who have come from prison, and she is doing extensive rehabilitation work on their behalf.

She said that she found most of the men coming to her were young boys who had "done time," highly strung boys with good mentality who lacked only the opportunity to have become leading professional men and good citizens. If other member agencies such as the Y.M.C.A. and Boy Scouts had been able to have sufficient funds to have helped these boys when they were younger, she doubted if they would now have need of the services of the John Howard Society.

In the year immediately preceding the war, Mrs. Mitchell said, she handled 800 cases, but with the fuller employment resulting from the war, it had dropped to 50 cases.

Another member agency about which little is known is the St. Vincent de Paul Society. Mr. Jones related, which does a wonderful work. The society is mainly concerned, he said, with helping needy families and individuals. It also handles some transient cases, and visits prisoners, providing milk for school children. Summer camps are also regular features of their work.

Mr. Jones expressed satisfaction at the way the campaign is progressing, and at the end of the fifth day, Friday, a total of $29,562.70 had been raised. Friday $6,568.40 was collected.

The sum of $200 a month will be forwarded to Community Chest from Yarrows employees' War Services Fund, it was reported. This money will be paid for a year, and is to be given to the Children's Aid Society, John Howard Society, Family Welfare and the V.O.N.

This morning 16 girls canvassed V.M.D. employees between 7.30 a.m. and 8 a.m. Boeing Aircraft of Canada, Plant No. 6, has sent in $300 from the first shift as a result of a canvass Friday. They feel confident that at least $500 will be forthcoming when the canvass is completed.

Wounded 3 Days After Landing

Sgt. William Allan Paterson, 27, wounded veteran of the Normandy invasion, is greeted by his mother as he returned home to recuperate.

"It's wonderful to have my boy back," said the happy mother.

Paterson, who was a sergeant in the militia before the outbreak of war, went overseas with the Canadian Scottish four years ago. He was among the first of the Canadians who waded ashore at the Normandy beachheads on D-Day. He was with his unit advancing on the road between Caen and Bayeux when he fell, wounded by shrapnel in the left hip. It was on June 9, just three days after landing on French soil.

Arriving home on crutches Friday, Paterson was the first to receive attention at the new Red Cross reception booth opened a week ago at the Canadian Pacific docks, where Red Cross and Canadian Legion representatives are constantly on hand to give assistance to returned men and their relatives.

On coming ashore from the boat, Paterson went immediately to his mother's home at 2776 Burdick Avenue, where he will remain for a month, when he will return to Shaughnessy Military Hospital for further treatment.

The wounded sergeant had little to say about his battle experiences, but he spoke highly of the work of the Red Cross and other services which contributed to the comfort of the wounded men on their way home.

Paterson was one of 34 men arriving by hospital train in Vancouver this week from the fighting fronts of France and Italy.

Gnr. H. W. Naunton, son of Mrs. Mary Naunton, Old West Road, Saanich, who came back from France with his arm in a cast, is expected home as soon as released from Shaughnessy Hospital. Other Vancouver Islanders among the returning group were: Sgt. J. W. Grier, son of Mrs. Mary Grier of Royston, and Pte. S. J. Drinkwater, son of Mrs. Winnifred Drinkwater of Alberni.

Paterson said he was looking forward to the arrival of his wife, who is staying at present with relatives in Worthing, Sussex, England. She is the former Ida Florence Jellett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Jellett of Worthing. The wedding took place Dec. 27, 1943. Just as soon as arrangements can be completed by the authorities, Mrs. Paterson will cross the Atlantic to rejoin her husband.

Bracken Club Names Officers

Officers of the Bracken Club were announced today as follows:

President, J. Denis Hagar; vice-president, John Barraclough; treasurer, James Evans; secretary, Maurice O'Connor; directors, W. F. Munro, W. A. Clarke, Cecil A. May and James D. Munro.

Objectives of the club are listed as "to promote greater public interest and appreciation of the duties and responsibilities of Canadian citizenship and the importance of competent representative leadership in public life; to form discussion and study groups on current questions of politics, economics and government; to create an organization which will ensure that every elector, no matter what his political conviction, votes on election day."

The club will bring before its members competent authorities to discuss national problems, Mr. Hagar said.

"Victoria Bracken Club will welcome any Canadian who subscribes to its objects," Mr. Hagar said. "It is hoped to promote, particularly among the younger citizens of the country, a local forum for political thought and action."

View Royal Liberals Select Delegates

VIEW ROYAL (Special)—Liberals of the area met in the new Community Hall in this fast-growing district Friday evening to hear W. T. Straith, K.C., M.L.A., and to choose candidates for Monday's Liberal Nanaimo convention in Duncan, at which Maj. Alan Chambers is expected to be renominated.

Maj. Chambers has brought much credit to himself and his constituency by his war service and his knowledge of the problems of our returning soldiers will be most useful in the House of Commons," Mr. Straith said.

"The King government has considered the war effort as its paramount concern and we are told by statesmen from other Allied countries that Canada's war effort has been the most outstanding of all the Allied countries. With his experience and his success in furthering our war effort, it is logical that Mr.

Premier Hart Leaves Monday On 14-Day Tour

Premier John Hart will leave Victoria Monday on a two-week tour of the central interior, to fulfill a number of public speaking engagements and to review at first hand a number of problems which require his personal attention.

Mr. Hart will reach Trail Wednesday, Sept. 27, will speak there and while in the district will visit Rossland. From Trail he will go to Nelson and Creston, where speaking engagements have been arranged and where again he will look into several important matters, decisions on which have been deferred until such times as the Premier could give them his personal attention, said a statement today from the Premier's office.

Mr. Hart expects to be in the Nelson-Creston area from Sept. 30 to Oct. 3, when he will visit Nakusp, following which he will go to Arrowhead and Revelstoke, where he will arrive Oct. 4. He will be in Kamloops to speak Oct. 6 and will speak in Merritt Oct. 7.

"It is the Premier's hope that after returning to the coast and attending to the business accumulated during his absence to take the earliest opportunity to return to the mainland and visit the communities in the Okanagan Valley area," the Premier's office said.

Evictions Under Control By This Time Next Week

Evictions of tenants in major B.C. cities is expected to be under control late next week following swift action by Attorney-General R. L. Maitland, K.C.

The attorney-general submitted his plans to the morning meeting of the cabinet, presided over by Premier Hart, and spent most of the day drafting regulations with Eric Pepler, K.C., deputy attorney-general, and J. Pittman Hogg, legislative counsel.

Finance Minister Ilsley earlier in the week told Mr. Maitland that if B.C. would amend its Landlord and Tenant Act, covering evictions, the Dominion government would pass a regulation with the same end in view, until the B.C. Legislature can meet early next year to pass the amendment.

Draft of the regulation for Ottawa's consideration, and expected to be approved in full, reads as follows:

"No order made by any court against a tenant under whose possession may be recovered of premises situated in Victoria, Vancouver, North Vancouver, Burnaby, shall be enforced unless the person on whose behalf the order was made has first obtained a permit for enforcement from the Court of Rental Appeals; and that court, on hearing of an application for a permit shall take into consideration what is just and equitable, having regard to any hardship that may be caused by the granting or refusal of the permit; and notice of an application for permit shall be given to the tenant."

Amendment to the Landlord and Tenant Act is the same, with the provision that it shall remain in force only so long as the War Measures Act of the Dominion Government is in force. This act will lapse on the termination of hostilities.

The regulation and amendment are now in the airmail to Ottawa and are expected to be seen Monday by Mr. Ilsley and presented to the federal cabinet at its first meeting next week.

Greater Victoria Move Next Week

Further preliminary steps towards eventual amalgamation of Oak Bay and Esquimalt with the city in a Greater Victoria will be undertaken next week, Mayor Andrew McGavin said today.

Discussions would be held with Reeve W. L. Woodhouse, Oak Bay, and Reeve Thomas Hadfield, Esquimalt, during the week, the mayor said.

As it stands now, the merger move has progressed to the position where the three municipal heads are ready to consider appointment of a commissioner to survey the situation and draft a complete picture of the amalgamation prior to any public vote.

An active home building program in Saanich carried that municipality to the front in Greater Victoria construction during the week ending today.

Five homes were among 16 permits issued for a total value of $28,300 there in comparison to 22 permits with a total value of $27,362 in the city.

In Victoria proper a major ice-making and storage plant for B. Wilson Co. Ltd. highlighted the week's activity. Value of the undertaking was listed at $11,000. In addition one new $4,700 home was started and a conversion costing $6,300 was listed.

New houses in Saanich were reported as follows: A $5,800 five-room house at 1951 Ernest Avenue; a $5,750 five-room dwelling at 1512 Athlone Drive; a $4,600 five-room house at 1416 Athlone Drive; a $3,900 four-room house on Sinclair Road, and a $3,100 four-room house at 2845 Rockwell Avenue.

No building permits were issued in Esquimalt for the week. In Oak Bay a permit for a $4,500 five-room home at 923 Monterey and a $300 dwelling alteration completed the list.

Sandwell Argues For United Canada

"It is much easier to unite people against something than to unite them for something," said B. K. Sandwell, editor of Saturday Night, in a plea for a united Canada, made before members of the Canadian Club in the Empress Hotel Friday.

At the time of the Confederation in 1867, he said, the threat of a strengthening U.S. to the south, had made Canadians forget their differences and bring about a unification of the British possessions into a Dominion of Canada.

Today, he said, provinces were interested in Canada from their own standpoint—Quebec, with her own culture, Ontario as a business and industrial centre, and the other provinces in their own desires for their betterment.

The army overseas was being welded together by danger and a common enemy, he said, and one needed to be only a good fighting man to be a part of the whole, whether he was French, Canadian, English, Jew or Ukrainian.

"I don't want the men to come back and find us too far behind what they have been fighting for," he said.

Impregnable conditions of travel throughout Canada, he believed, would bring about increased association between Canadians of one part of Canada and Canadians of another part. He deplored the tendency to travel to the U.S. instead, but, he admitted, "the U.S. is too enticing."

He believed trade unions which sent their able, young men from one part of Canada to another to develop leaders with a national experience. The churches, though national, were not quite so successful as trade unions, he said.

He would like to see all influential young men given the opportunity to work in different parts of Canada, he said, and he would like to see the good thinking of French-speaking Canada translated into English and read by the other parts of Canada, and the good thinking of the others translated into French. There was too much translation of the wrong things, he added.

Internment Camp In Quebec Burns

SHERBOOKE, Que. (CP)—Men's headquarters and administration building of the Newington internment camp, a German war prisoner camp two miles north of this eastern township town, were destroyed by fire early today, but no escapes were reported.

Col. H. D. Hadley, officer commanding the camp, announced a military court of inquiry would meet later in the day "to ascertain the cause of the fire," which was believed to have originated in the boiler room.

No one was reported killed or injured.

Enemy Cruiser Bombed In Italy Port

ROME (AP)—Three formations of medium bombers struck at the German-held Italian cruiser Taranto at La Spezia today, leaving her in flames from hits across the bow, amidships and stern.

The 3,814-ton Taranto was formerly the German cruiser Strassburg, allotted to Italy after the First Great War. The cruiser is 440 feet long, and was built in 1911.

Cathedral Grove Timber To Be Discussed Again

Preservation of scenic timber in Cathedral Grove moved a step closer this week when Premier John Hart, as Minister of Lands, and the government's chief forester, C. D. Orchard, inspected the area where conservationists want the tall trees saved for posterity.

The Premier and Mr. Orchard tramped several hours through the woods and looked over stands of timber along Cameron Lake which Mr. Hart also hopes to preserve.

Negotiations have been under way with the owners of Cathedral Grove for some months, in a government effort to save the timber from the logger's axe. Premier Hart, when he returns from a central interior tour in two weeks, will speed up the negotiations and hopes to have the deal completed by the end of the year.

Hollyburn Ridge timber, which the government is preserving as a scenic asset, was traded by the Heaps interests for crown timber licenses on Vancouver Island, north of Campbell River, it was learned at the Parliament Buildings today.

Also on Mr. Hart's agenda, as soon as he returns from his tour, is a visit with Public Works Minister Herbert Anscomb along the West Coast Highway, to see if its completion to Port Renfrew, as requested by Victoria Chamber of Commerce, can be undertaken by the government as a postwar project.

Mission Successfully Completed

Having landed their cargoes of paratroopers in Holland, these gliders were quickly despatched by their airborne troops which joined with the British 2nd Army to drive across the Siegfried Line and head toward Berlin. Skid marks indicate diverse courses of landings. (Signal Corps Radioteletype.)

8th Opens Drive for Bologna

ROME (CP)—British 8th Army troops on the Adriatic flank of the Italian front have opened a drive northwest from captured Rimini on the coast to Bologna, roughly 70 miles away, while other units of the 8th plunged north toward Ravenna, 35 miles up the coast and 45 miles east of Bologna.

Rimini fell Thursday to Greek forces under Canadian command. U.S. infantry of the Allied 5th Army widened their breach in the centre of the Gothic Line with the seizure of Monte Citerna and Monte Tronale, both west of captured Firenzuola. High ground north of Firenzuola was occupied.

These advances placed the 5th Army on the threshold of the strategic Futa Pass. Columns spearheading northward along the mountain roads were meeting an enemy which Allied headquarters declared was becoming disorganized "to a limited extent."

By WILLIAM STEWART—WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY (CP)—Canadians who stormed and overcame Boulogne and its tough fortifications, taking more than 9,000 prisoners, today won a word of praise from the captured German garrison commander.

Lt. Gen. Ferdinand Heim, veteran of the Russian campaign and the battles of Stalingrad and Kiev, said the Canadians fought well. The 49-year-old commander, who had been in Boulogne nine months while recuperating from an illness, also was satisfied with the defence put up by his garrison during the past six days.

Although the prisoner count now is about 9,000, it is expected to exceed that figure. The strength of the garrison, originally estimated at 5,000, was 11,200.

Col. H. D. Hadley, officer commanding the camp, announced a military court of inquiry would meet later in the day "to ascertain the cause of the fire," which was believed to have originated in the boiler room.

No one was reported killed or injured.

Boulogne Germans Praise Canadians Who Captured Them

By JOHN E. LEE—GEN. EISENHOWER'S ADVANCED COMMAND POST, FRANCE (AP)—Exuding quiet confidence, Gen. Eisenhower today declared Germany's military situation was hopeless.

The length of the European war depends, he continued, on two main factors: First, how long the Germans can stand the terrific pounding they are taking from the west, south and east, and, secondly, how long the Gestapo remains in control of the Reich.

The General, who has been troubled by a stiff right knee for the last few weeks, received a few correspondents at his command post informally and discussed the war, mostly off the record. He expressed surprise at recent reports that he had been unwell and indicated that, except for his knee, he was in excellent shape.

It may be revealed now that his knee was injured early this month when he was returning to headquarters in France from a trip aboard a light liaison plane. Arriving at an airstrip near headquarters, the pilot found the weather unsuitable for a landing, so he put down at a nearby beach under difficult, cloudy conditions. Although he made an excellent landing, the plane rolled close to the surf at the end of its run.

Gen. Eisenhower and the pilot dragged the plane away from the water. While doing so, Eisenhower accidentally twisted his knee, which has bothered him ever since. Despite the mishap, however, he has made several aerial trips.

In reply to questions from correspondents, Gen. Eisenhower said the advance in Europe was moving slowly at present and refused to commit himself on whether the war in this theatre will end this year.

There is no doubt in his mind, however, as to how the war will end.

He explained in detail that Germany's final defeat depends in great measure on how long it can stand up under the hammering. From a professional military viewpoint, he said, the Germans now have no hope of mounting any really effective counterblow. Therefore, militarily, it is useless for them to continue fighting, he said.

However, Gen. Eisenhower pointed out, the Gestapo still holds the reins in the Reich and its agents have nothing to gain by surrendering.

Coming in, the alderman said, his car speedometer had recorded the distance from the Gordon Head area to the City Hall to be four and one-half miles. That point was highly satisfactory, Mr. Hilchie said.

Death for Germans Aiding Nazis or Misleading Allies

LONDON (CP)—A strict policy in dealing with occupied Germany, including the death penalty for any German aiding the Nazis or deliberately misleading Allied troops, was decreed today by Gen. Eisenhower.

As a first step, a ban was placed on the Nazi political and military organizations. All were ordered dissolved, while "German laws, involving discrimination on grounds of race, religion or political opinion are abrogated," said the edict, issued by Allied Supreme Headquarters.

Meanwhile the British press expressed dissatisfaction with the progress made by the Allied War Crimes Commission in preparing cases against Hitler and other top-ranking Nazis. A hint was said to have developed over how much they would be tried—whether they should be brought before a military court or dealt with on a political basis.

NOT YET DECIDED

The London News Chronicle and the Daily Mail, declaring the names of Hitler, Goebbels, Goering and Himmler have not yet been placed on the list of 350 criminals already drafted, said the reason may be that the Allies have not yet decided how they would be tried.

Gen. Eisenhower's statement, which amplified a broadcast to the German people Sept. 18, ordered Nazi party administrative officers to remain at their posts until all funds, records, equipment and property are surrendered.

At the same time it outlined steps for the installation of orderly processes by the Allied Military Government.

Favorably Impressed By Gordon Head Site

W. Hilchie, assistant to the district inspector of civil administration, is impressed with the Gordon Head area as a potential municipal airport site, Ald. B. J. Gadsden reported today following an inspection of the field by Mr. Hilchie and city representatives Friday.

As a preparatory move, Ald. Gadsden said, Mr. Hilchie had suggested acquisition of information from Gonzales Observatory and from military authorities on the ground regarding prevailing winds and wind velocities.

He further suggested that the city engineering staff survey the region and develop contours to give a complete indication of the topography of the region.

Mr. Hilchie, the alderman said, favored acquisition of a tract sufficiently large to permit early construction of a 2,000-foot runway and later development, by sections, of a full airport. Costs of a 2,000-foot runway finished in tarmac would be about $8,000, he said, but grass would be satisfactory for a start.

Ald. Gadsden remarked R. W. Mayhew, M.P., had informed the city, Ottawa authorities were prepared to give the city first option on the Gordon Head property when disposal of that area was approved.

Coming in, the alderman said, his car speedometer had recorded the distance from the Gordon Head area to the City Hall to be four and one-half miles. That point was highly satisfactory, Mr. Hilchie said.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK (AP)—Rising tendencies persisted for selected stocks, particularly, locomotive manufacturing issues, in today's market although many leaders lacked progressive power.

Canadian issues were quiet but Walkers gained a full point and Dome added 1/4.

'A Star Is Born' Feature at York

Frederic March became an actor because he was bored. He should have turned out a banker, if preparation for a career had anything to do with it. For the actor, who stars in the David O. Selznick color production, "A Star Is Born," coming Monday to the York Theatre, was an honor student in finance at the University of Wisconsin and won a scholarship which made him a junior clerk at the National City Bank in New York. When this proved too dull, he turned to the stage.

The second starting point had its locale in Los Angeles, when March played the lead in the stage production of "The Royal Family," and quickly won a Paramount contract to play the lead in the screen version.

What has happened since is motion picture history.

Jive Comedy Stars Droll Comedienne

Columbia's merry-go-round of laughs and jive, "Beautiful But Broke" starring the most ferocious she-wolf you ever howled at, Joan Davis, opens Monday at the Atlas Theatre. Also featured in the cast are Jane Frazee, Judy Clark, Bob Haymes, John Hubbard and Willie West and McInty. It was directed by Charles Barton.

PLAZA THEATRE

Crowds attending the Plaza Theatre last night saw the thrilling frontier picture, "The Last of the Mohicans," and had lavish praise for the production. The stellar cast gave a splendid performance and rendered great support to the two stars in the film, Randolph Scott and Binnie Barnes. In the second feature are Laurel and Hardy in the comedy, "Beau Hunk."

CAPITOL THEATRE

Jean Heather had hardly finished her dramatic course at the University of Washington when Paramount talent scouts approached her with a contract. The result finds Jean as one of the feminine leads in the studio's tender story of a priest, "Going My Way," with Bing Crosby, Barry Fitzgerald and Rhea Stevens. The film is at the Capitol Theatre.

DOMINION THEATRE

William Wythe and Anne Baxter are the romantic team in the 20th Century-Fox filmization of Maxwell Anderson's celebrated play, "The Eve of St. Mark," currently at the Dominion Theatre. The most understanding, searching drama of a soldier's love and faith to come out of this war. "The Eve of St. Mark" also features Michael O'Shea with Vincent Price, Ruth Nelson and Ray Collins in its brilliant cast.

OAK BAY THEATRE

A striking romance of a charming reprobate and the woman who loved him better than life itself is the thematic basis of the dramatic offering, "Suspicion," now at the Oak Bay Theatre, starring Cary Grant and Joan Fontaine.

RIO THEATRE

Lee "Lasses" White feels that he might have qualified for the Paratroopers if he had been born a little later. Many years ago, at the age of 17, he put in a summer as a parachute jumper at fair in Texas, and made 18 jumps before he thought better of the idea, and got a job on the stage with a Dallas stock company. White is now at the Rio Theatre in "The Unknown Guest," the Monogram psychological drama which features Victor Jory and Pamela Blake.

CADET THEATRE

"Boy," Tarzan's son, is again played by Johnny Sheffield in the second in the thrilling Tarzan series for RKO Radio, "Tarzan's Desert Mystery," at the Cadet, and once more, aided by his jungle pal, Cheta, the chimpanzee, and a brand-new animal-actor, an Arabian stallion, sets forth to help Tarzan vanquish the desert renegades and save a beautiful girl from danger. Johnny Weissmuller, Nancy Kelly and Johnny Sheffield are starred.

Where's the Lumber? Asks Construction Head; Challenges Ottawa Figures

Figures of Canadian timber controller, A. H. Williamson, that 2,500,000,000 feet of lumber are being made available for the construction industry of Canada were challenged here by Herbert C. Nicholls of Toronto, president of Canadian Construction Association.

Mr. Williamson from Ottawa earlier this week telegraphed Mr. Nicholls protesting the latter's statement that "nearly all Canada's lumber production is being exported to the United Kingdom and the United States."

"Only 40 per cent of the 1944 production of 4,700,000,000 feet is going to these markets this year and over half the Canadian production, or more than 2,500,000,000 feet is available for consumption in Canada in 1944," Mr. Williamson telegraphed. "This represents the greatest quantity ever consumed in this country in any pre-war year, with the exception of the boom year of 1929."

Mr. Nicholls read Mr. Williamson's wire to the 200 men in the construction industry attending the dinner given by the Victoria Builders' Exchange to the party of Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton heads of the C.A.A. now touring Canada.

"It is that is so, where is the lumber?" Mr. Nicholls asked. "We're not getting our proper amount of it in the east and I learn, since coming here, that you're not getting it either, strange as that may seem with so much timber about. If it is true that Canada has that much left, I want to know why we cannot buy it. You people here are just as short as we are in the east."

Mr. Nicholls said he was satisfied "Mr. Williamson's statistical figures were not correct."

EXCESS TAXES

Concern was also expressed by Mr. Nicholls that B.C. was not cutting all the timber it might because of fear of excess profits tax.

He said other industries—the construction industry, for instance—is also faced with excess profits taxes, but that is not keeping the industry back.

"British Columbia has got to cut lumber," he said. "It must be cut for the rest of Canada—you've got to see the lumber is cut—you owe it to the rest of Canada to cut lumber, for the matter is serious. I want to see you supply lumber to the prairies, to the eastern part of Canada—you're not giving us British Columbia fir."

One Woman's Day...

By NANCY HODGES

"GOD'S ACRE"

WHILE ON A RATHER sad mission to the old Naval Cemetery the other day that ancient phrase which the Saxons applied to their burial grounds, "God's Acre," came to my mind.

And I thought how beautifully it fitted this little oasis of peace, tucked away on a quiet hillside in Esquimalt.

Here, wandering through its tree-shaded paths, you realize the appropriateness of R. L. Stevenson's lovely lines from his Requiem:

"Here he lies where he longs to be,
Home is the sailor home from sea."

For in this sequestered spot lie men of the Royal Navy—as well as the Royal Canadian Navy—who have come home from the sea.

NAVAL HISTORY

SCANNING THE HEADSTONES is like reading a page from naval history. For on them are recorded the names of famous fighting ships that have come into Esquimalt from the time when it first became a British naval station.

Although the graves are meticulously cared for, some of the oldest tombstones have been so weathered by time that it
